This lifespan course provides students with an understanding of the issues facing lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ+) individuals, and the implications for social work practice and policy. It considers the lives of LGBTQ+ people from youth, through young and mid-adulthood, through the elder years. The course will examine many issues facing LGBTQ+ individuals, including sexual orientation and gender identity; bias, homophobia, and discrimination; family and relationship matters; health and mental health issues; and the impact of institutional and policy bias. Students will consider social work strategies to address these psychosocial challenges. Class discussion and materials will seek to promote the well-being and resiliency of LGBTQ+ individuals in response to social injustice. There are no prerequisites for this elective.

Upon successful completion of this course, students should have acquired an understanding of:

- Historical context for LGBTQ+ oppression and discrimination in the U.S.
- Distinctions between and personal meaning of sexual orientation and gender identity
- Experiences and perspectives of LGBTQ+ individuals through the lifespan
- Unique issues for youth, young and mid-life adults, and older adults

PLAGIARISM

The Wurzweiler School of Social Work does not condone plagiarism in any form and will sanction acts of plagiarism. A student who presents someone else's work as his or her own work is stealing from the authors or persons who did the original thinking and writing. Plagiarism occurs when a student directly copies another's work without citation; when a student paraphrases major aspects of another's work without citation; student and present them as your own. This explicitly includes the use of AI, which is not recommended. However, if AI is used in any class assignment, students must cite and reference any AI generated material; failure to do so is regarded as plagiarism.

It is not plagiarism to formulate your own presentation of an idea or concept as a reaction to someone else's work; however, the work to which you are reacting should be discussed and appropriately cited. Any student who can be shown to have plagiarized any part of any assignment in this course will fail the course and will be referred to the Associate Dean for disciplinary action that may include expulsion.

In line with the new HIPAA regulations concerning protected health information of clients or others, it is important that any case information you present from your work needs to be de-identified. What this means is that any information that would allow another to identify the person needs to be changed or eliminated. This includes obvious identifiers, such as names and birth dates, but may also may involve other information that is so unique to the person that it will allow for identification, including diagnosis, race/ethnicity, or gender. If diagnosis, race/ethnicity, or gender is directly related to the case presentation it can be included if it will not allow for identification.

Given the sensitive nature of class discussions, including the discussion of course materials, and at times revelation of personal matters, students are reminded that the same commitment to confidentiality with clients extends to classmates. What is shared in class stays in class.

Students with disabilities who are enrolled in this course and who will be requesting documented disability-related accommodations are asked to discuss their needs with the Office of Disability Services, Abby Kelsen, Wilf Campus, 646-685-0118, akelsen@yu.edu, during the first week of class. After approval for accommodations is granted, please submit your accommodations letter to your professor to discuss your needs.

Most of the articles in the syllabus that are not in required textbooks are available on electronic reserve (E-RESERVES).

1. Go to your class Canvas page.
2. Click the link "Library Resources & E-Reserves"
3. If you wish to access e-reserves from the library home page (library.yu.edu), Please use "wurzweiler" all lower case, as the password.

4. If you have problems accessing e-reserves, please email: _____.

This course will include readings, case studies and exercises, and experiential group exercises, as well as independent research and writing. All students are expected to keep up to date with the reading and written assignments, which will serve as a background for class activities and assignments, and provide important background material and building blocks for each class.

the bully) and their parents, the educational community that should address the problem, and the policymakers establishing the rules to be followed upon incidents of bullying.

Identify a lifespan experience facing LGBTQ+ people that has personal, community, and policy components. Please obtain your professor's prior approval of your topic. In a concise introduction, explain the significance of this issue, and briefly discuss how it ties together the personal, community, and policy realms.

2. How does this issue impact the personal lives of LGBTQ+ individuals? Use professional literature to help analyze your issue from developmental and/or clinical perspectives. Provide example(s) from recent events to illustrate your points. Examples may be obtained from the professional literature, or from national newspapers, popular periodicals, or the Internet.

3. Interview a professional social worker, program planner, administrator, or policy official at a community organization serving the LGBTQ+ community. Find out about the client population and their service needs and issues, the programs developed to address those client needs, and the governmental policies that impact on addressing client/community needs.

4. Describe the meeting you had at an LGBTQ+ community organization. Who did you meet with and what do they do? Describe the client population and their service needs and issues. What programs are in place to address their client's needs? Have they been shown to be effective? Describe the governmental policies that impact on meeting the needs of clients and the community.

5. Place the client and community needs in the context of the broader policy environment.

- a. Identify one (1) city, state, or federal policy that impacts on the ability of your agency to serve its clients and community.
- b. Briefly summarize the governmental policy and describe how it affects clients. Please be specific and cite to policy materials describing them.
- c. Briefly advocate for one (1) policy recommendation, consistent with social work values, which would improve client services.

For example, if you interview staff at an agency serving homeless LGBTQ+ youth, find out about specific governmental policies that impact upon serving these young people. Obtain suggestions on policies to improve client care.
