Assessment Sequence

Required Assessment & Psychotherapy Labs

Psychotherapy Course Sequence by Clinical Track

A: No. Do not make any other commitments until your first year schedule has been completely set up. This includes lab assignments on the first day of classes.

Q: Can I switch assessment or therapy labs if the time and/or location do not fit into my schedule?

A: You can request a switch, but ultimately, you are required to attend the lab to which you are assigned.

Q: How do I become a teaching assistant for the first year assessment lab?

A: You must be an advanced student (3rd year) in good academic standing. You must be approved by the instructor. Every spring, the Cognitive Assessment instructor will post an experience, grades in assessment courses, and the equitable distribution of TA opportunities across students.

Q: Can I take both a Psychodynamic lab and CBT lab?

A: Yes. You can take both labs but not concurrently. You have the option to take a psychodynamic lab in your third year and the CBT lab in your fourth year or vice versa.

Q: Can I take only a psychodynamic or CBT lab if I have a strong interest in only one orientation?

A: Yes, you can take two full years of psychodynamic or CBT lab allowing a more in-depth exposure to one orientation.

Q: Are there any readings or supplemental work associated with the assessment or therapy labs?

A: Yes, the labs complement the course work and require additional assignments and readings, often in ways that are responsive to specific patient issues or trainee needs for competency development.
